COURSE DESCRIPTION*

Dialogue Processes is structured as an online learning community for cultivating practical, reflective and transformative approaches to engaging and facilitating dialogue processes. Building from the MIT Dialogue Project in the early 90s, this course will focus on Otto Scharmer’s groundbreaking work with the four fields of conversation and presencing—a generative dialogue approach. The course offers multiple learning spaces designed to develop our individual and collective capacities for bringing significant changes in how we think, communicate and learn together in conversation. The course offers multiple learning spaces including weekly group dialogues/lectures, and online threaded discussion. There will be regular skill and capacity building exercises, coaching triads and a final project that involves conducting a reflective or applied dialogue based project in your organization, community or peer group. The course will be delivered through Vista, Wimba, Skype and draw on inspirational web-based audio and video files where possible.

COURSE OVERVIEW

From the middle of the twentieth century leading into our present day, interest in dialogue grew considerably across disciplines, bringing about a renaissance of practical applications and approaches to dialogue. Briefly considering this body of work will prepare us for our exploration of Scharmer’s recent approach to dialogue with his model of the four fields of conversation and presencing. Informing our semester long learning journey will be live weekly lectures and dialogues, weekly online threaded discussion, as well as an assortment of capacity-building exercises, peer-based coaching, personal blogs and practical assignments for applying these cutting-edge conversational tools in your organizations, workplaces and personal life.

* note: course syllabus is subject to revision and change as the course evolves
COURSE GRADING
Grades will be based on the following:

Online Participation, Readings (25%)
There will be weekly posted questions and inquiries designed to deepen your understanding and application of the weekly readings. My expectations for your participation and engagement are based on the quality of your postings (see inquiry guidelines). As the course is not self-paced, everyone is expected to work on their own and together in order to complete assignments on time.

Weekly Group Dialogues & Assignments (25%)
There will be weekly group dialogues/lectures and two written assignments for the course in order to support us in making deep dives into the weekly readings and lectures. A regular one-hour-time slot will be established for weekly group dialogues/lectures during the first week.

Dialogue Coaching & Coaching Journal (25%)
The weekly peer-coaching module is designed to build key capacities for generative conversations. I ask that everyone participate in 2 weekly ½ hour coaching calls with their coach and coachee. You will also keep an online coaching journal in the form of a blog to document your growth and development through the course (see coaching journal guidelines).

Final Project (25%)
Your final project is expected to develop from inspiration that you discover in your online inquiries, weekly readings, group dialogues, coaching calls and coaching journals. The final project will cover an essential aspect of the course that is quite meaningful and central to the dialogue-based questions you are exploring in your professional and/or personal life. Further details concerning the final project will be announced in week 3.

SCHEDULE OF SESSIONS
The course is divided into a series of thirteen online sessions that correspond to each week.

Week 1: Launching our learning community
Our first week will begin with everyone introducing themselves online. During this week, I invite you to familiarize yourself with the course homepage, visit the Course Lounge and establish a time with me for a brief check-in (via Skype). After the introductory lecture, I ask that you choose your dialogue artist/theorist for assignment one and let me know as soon as possible.

Week 2: Historical Overview of Dialogue
The second week will offer a brief overview of the history behind Scharmer’s work in dialogue. During this week, students will write about a dialogue artist/theorist and complete a 2 page summary portrait to be posted online. This week will also feature the launch of the Coaching Corner, where students will join a coaching group for semester-long adventures in peer-coaching.
Weeks 3-7: Four Fields of Conversation

Weeks three through seven will introduce Scharmer’s four fields of conversation. For four consecutive weeks we will investigate each field of conversation and inquire further into the different modes of listening and speaking, communication habits that reinforce or break these fields, as well as significance of each stage of conversation in your professional and personal life. Weekly dialogues and lectures will guide us through a walk of each field and its culture of conversation. Readings (both mandatory and optional) will be drawn each week from a broad selection of inspiring PDF and DOC files, as well as online articles. Dialogue audio or videos with key theorists will be introduced wherever possible. Facilitation practices will be introduced through the coaching modules.

Week 8: Applications of the Four Fields & Presencing

For this session, we will look at the four fields of conversation and presencing and explore obstacles and opportunities for implementing these frameworks in different educational, social and organizational settings. We will also address criticisms of these methods and explore best practices to bring back to our conversations.

Week 9: Facilitation of the four fields of conversation

This session will examine more in detail the transitions between the four fields of conversation, as well as the in-the-moment and foundational practices needed to facilitate these shifts—whether in a one on one conversation or a dialogue group. Approaches to dialogue facilitation and the core capacities required will be addressed in detail.

Week 10: Coaching Conversations

This final course week will focus more in depth on our coaching conversations. There will be a reflective component of the semester of coaching conversations, as well as a coaching assignment where students explore ways of supporting one another with the development of their final project.

Week 11-12: Projecteering & Learning Journeys

These final weeks are focused on applying what we have learned in the course through different forms of peer-to-peer learning, evaluation and teamwork. Here I ask that everyone choose a solo or collaborative project for going deeper into a burning dialogue question or issue in their professional or personal lives. Students will be encouraged to create partnerships with others at their work to deepen their learning experiences of dialogue. The option to facilitate a dialogue of your own will also be encouraged. Through this real-world component, you will have the opportunity to apply your new learning in dialogue, set up a dialogue project, and bring the results back to our learning community.

Week 13: Presentations & Reflections

During our final week, everyone will present their offline projects to the group and reflect on their learning within these projects and the course as a whole.
Participation Requirements

The course will be delivered through a series of thirteen online weekly sessions, with each week taking multiple interactive forms including weekly dialogue/lectures, weekly readings, asynchronous inquiry, phone coaching, web-based audio and video files. This course will rely on the energy, interest and input of each of us to make this a transformative experience for all. Regular participation and online presence is vital.

Required Course Text:

Recommended Course Texts:

Internet Communication
We will meet online weekly over the semester through Wimba, Vista and Skype. The dates and times of our meetings will be established during week one.

Office Hours
I will hold my virtual office hours by appointment via Skype internet phone. Please email me in advance to schedule a time.

Email: gunnlaugson@hotmail.com
Skype ID: Trifoss

Plug-ins, special equipment and software
You will need the free adobe acrobat reader to open the pdf documents contained in this course. You can find this at www.adobe.com where you have to search around for the free one or at www.downloads.com You will also need a copy of Skype Internet Phone. You can download a copy of Skype at www.skype.com

You will also need to purchase a headset with microphone (average cost $5) for your computer to use Skype. My Skype Username is: Trifoss.

Our Communication
Instead of sending me e-mail with general questions regarding this course, please post them in the Q & A folder (link through site map here) found in the Discussions section instead. I will respond to any questions posted in the within 48 hours (except on weekends). This is the best place to post all non-private questions that pertain to the course since other members of the class will benefit from the answers as well.
Method of Instruction
Each weekly session will officially start every Monday at 9am EST. The specific plans for each week will be announced at this time. Please visit the homepage at the beginning of each week to review the plan for the week so you can budget your time accordingly. I will not be sending you e-mail reminder. It is therefore imperative that you log on to the course homepage in order to begin the activities planned for the week. You should plan on logging onto the course web site at least 3 times each week to contribute to threaded inquiry and keep up with other activities that may be underway. Plan on spending between 5 or more hours each week on this course (including weekly dialogue/lectures, readings, inquiry threads, coaching assignments & coaching calls).